The Concept
The Detail

Bokamoso Trust and Greyton House have teamed up to establish The Overberg 51 Club. The goal is put three additional learners from disadvantaged backgrounds through the Greyton House Bursary Programme this year. For every 17 donors we're able to fund a child to attend Greyton House, who provide quality English medium education from foundation level.

Education is a fundamental right to all and is essential in uplifting the youth of South Africa. It provides children with an exceptional opportunity to improve their own livelihood and to uplift their family and community.

The Bokamoso Education Trust was set up with this belief in mind - to be a vehicle through which individuals and corporations can make donations that are accumulated and set towards the educational expenses of disadvantaged children.

Bokamoso's primary vision is to enable as many children as possible, who would otherwise not have had the opportunity, to get a world-class education. We have therefore undertaken the responsibility to provide the necessary financial support for each child's education (Grade 000 to 12). Furthermore, we facilitate the opportunity for donors to take an active and personal role in the child's development through mentorship, should they wish to do so.
